AUTHORITY AND REFERENCE

Pursuant to the authority vested by Education Code sections 94803, 94877, 94888, and 94891 and to implement, interpret, or make specific sections 94802, 94885, 94887, 94888, 94889, 94900, 94904, 94909, 94910, 94927.5, and 94931 of the Education Code, the Bureau is proposing to adopt the following changes to California Code of Regulations Title 5, Division 7.5, Chapter 3.

INFORMATIVE DIGEST/POLICY STATEMENT OVERVIEW

The Bureau for Private Postsecondary Education (Bureau) protects students and consumers through the regulatory oversight of California’s private postsecondary educational institutions (“institutions”) pursuant to the California Private Postsecondary Education Act of 2009 (“Act” – Ed. Code, §§ 94800–94950), including conducting qualitative reviews of educational programs and operating standards

In 2021 the legislature passed, and the Governor signed, SB 607 (Chapter 367, Statutes of 2021) which, among other things, repealed sections 94811 and 94904 of the Education Code and amended section 94909 of the Education Code to delete a reference to “Ability-to-Benefit” tests. These changes to the Education Code removed references to students being able to demonstrate their capacity for postsecondary study by passing an “Ability-to-Benefit” test in lieu of possessing a high school diploma or an equivalent. Ability-to-Benefit tests are tests approved by the United States Department of Education that, if passed, demonstrated that a student who lacked a high school diploma was capable of successfully completing study in a variety of subject matter areas and had the ability to benefit from the instruction.

References to Ability-to-Benefit tests occur in four of the Bureau’s regulations. In section 71210 institutions are directed to list information for each educational program, including “If applicable, information regarding the ability-to-benefit examination as required by section 94904 of the Code.” In section 71475 institutions applying for renewal of their approval to operate are directed to list in their application information about each educational program, including, “If applicable, information regarding the ability-to-benefit examination as required by section 94904 of the Code.” In section 71770(a), institutions are told that in developing admissions standards, “Each student admitted to an undergraduate degree program, or a diploma program, shall possess a high school diploma or its equivalent, or otherwise successfully take and pass the relevant examination as required by section 94904 of the Code.” Finally, section 71920 states that an institution must maintain student records that include, “Verification of high school completion or equivalency or other documentation establishing the student’s ability to do college level work, such as successful completion of an ability-to-benefit test.”

Because of the removal of language referring to Ability-to-Benefit tests from the Education Code, it is no longer accurate for regulations to refer to Ability-to-Benefit tests as being required by statute. However, if institutions wish to incorporate Ability-to-Benefit tests in their admissions process, then that fact should be reported in the same way statutorily required tests were required before SB 607.

For the regulations to conform to the revised statutory language, the Bureau for Private Postsecondary Education is proposing to amend 5 CCR sections 71210, 71475, 71770, and 71920 to delete references to passing an Ability-to-Benefit test as required by statute, either by deleting the reference entirely (as in section 71770), or replacing the reference to the repealed statute with a reference to whether the institution chooses to use passage of an Ability-to-Benefit test in its admission process. The regulations will also now contain a definition of what is meant by an “ability-to-benefit” test by reference to the federal statute creating them, the federal Higher Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. Sec. 1070a et seq.) as it is, from time to time, amended, as there is no longer a statutory reference to ability-to-benefit tests in statute.

ANTICIPATED BENEFITS OF THE PROPOSED REGULATION

BENEFITS OF THE REGULATION TO THE HEALTH AND WELFARE OF CALIFORNIA RESIDENTS:

The specific benefit anticipated from the proposed regulation is to have the Bureau’s regulations conform to existing statutory language. By removing the three references to Ability-to-Benefit tests that were in the Education Code, the legislature is signaling its intent to no longer require students without a high school diploma or the equivalent to have to do anything to be eligible for enrolling at postsecondary institutions. The Bureau’s regulations need to accurately reflect the current statutory language that they are interpreting. This regulation does not directly affect the health of California residents. This regulation may improve the welfare of California residents by conforming regulations to existing statutes that broaden access to postsecondary education.

BENEFITS OF THE REGULATION TO THE STATE’S ENVIRONMENT:

This regulation does not affect the state’s environment.

BENEFITS OF THE REGULATION TO WORKER SAFETY:

The Bureau has determined the proposed regulatory action will not affect worker safety.

CONSISTENCY AND COMPATIBILITY WITH EXISTING STATE REGULATIONS

During the process of developing these regulations and amendments, the Bureau has conducted a search of any similar regulations on this topic and has concluded that these regulations are neither inconsistent nor incompatible with existing state regulations.
